Southwest Indiana's local chapter of the National Audubon Society

Activities & Projects

Members in our chapter become involved with birding activities, as well as important educational and conservation projects.

Ohio Valley Birding Festival

One of our premier birding events is the annual Ohio Valley Birding Festival. Held in late April, the festival offers numerous hikes and many other bird related activities. www.evvaudubon.org

Bird Counts

EAS is also involved with two important citizen science bird counts annually: the Christmas Bird Count and the May Spring Count. Results of these counts contribute to our understanding of the distribution and abundance of birds.

Jr. Birders

We sponsor the Jr. Birders club which is a group of dedicated youth between the ages of 8-18 who participate in hikes to area birding hot spots. You can follow their activities, including the kestrel project, on Facebook.

About

Evansville Audubon Society is a local chapter of the National Audubon Society that serves several southwest Indiana counties!

Meetings & Programs

We meet at Wesselman Nature Center the third Tuesday every other month from September to May. Elections for officers occurs in June and we do not meet in July and August. A nature program begins at 6 pm, followed by a business meeting at 7 pm.

Field Trips

We have monthly field trips that are designed to be fun, yet educational. Our area of Indiana is blessed with many places to find birds and enjoy nature.

Newsletter

“The Bluebird” is our newsletter that provides details about meetings, programs, and field trips. It has feature articles on birds, other wildlife, and their habitats. Information on education and conservation issues are also provided.

Education Programs

EAS annually funds environmental education grants to teachers of area schools to support projects that promote an appreciation and better understanding of birds and their habitats.

Susan Fowler is our official Audubon Ambassador. She promotes our educational mission through her many storytelling programs given to hundreds of school-aged children in the Tri-State.

Conservation Projects

Our members are involved in important conservation projects, such as, building chimney swift towers to help increase swift populations, and building and monitoring nest boxes for the American kestrel.

Membership/Donation

Not an Evansville Audubon Society member? Join now to enjoy the benefits and activities of being an EAS member. A $20 membership allows you to also become a member of the National Audubon Society and receive Audubon Magazine.

To become a member, or to simply make a donation, fill in the form on the back of this page with your name, address, and email. Submit the form along with a check to the EAS Treasurer.

If you are interested in volunteering for any of our activities and projects you can send an inquiry to info@evvaudubon.org.
